United States into the League of Nations, willing to try anything even must have done some thinking about the fighting inside of the League.

If you want to a high court and found the judges staring off each other's gowns and kicking each other under the table, you would look for another court to try your case.

What sane man wants to expose the United States and the interests of its one hundred and fifteen millions of people to the decisions of a League of Nations that fights even in the councils of the League? Or of a World Court that would reflect the fighting attitude and bitter international prejudices of that League?

showing which way the prohibition wind is blowing comes the Holy Name Society of St. Gregory's Catholic Church in New York City. At its annual communion breakfast, the society passed resolutions urging the repeal of the prohibition amendment to the Constitution.

In western New York State Republican leaders are alarmed. They see a split in their ranks along prohibition lines, dangerous to the party, beneficial to the Democrats and for Governor Smith's Presidential aspirations.

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD says, "Neither the sun nor death can be looked at with a steady eye." That applies to men, not animals. The eagle and others look at the sun steadily, and all look calmly at death, not knowing he is there.

Men find comfort in the belief that there is something for them beyond death. Animals do not need that comfort.

'Stabber' Suspect Arrested SCHARTON APOLOGIZES TO JURY, DEFERRED BY COURT

$50,000 FIRE IN LYNN SWEEPS TANNERY OF KELLEY LEATHER CO.

Flames of undetermined origin destroyed one of the group of buildings of the Thomas A. Kelley Company's huge leather plant on Summer street, Lynn, early today. The property loss was estimated at $50,000.

Residents of houses along Linden street left their homes when warned by orders of Chief Chase of the Lynn fire department, who feared the flames might spread to those structures. So menacing did the fire appear when the first alarm apparatus arrived that two additional alarms were sounded and aid from Swampscott was called. Even with all available apparatus and men at hand, the flames were forced to battle three hours before the flames were brought under control. A terrific fire wall proved of material assistance to the fire fighters in keeping the flames from spreading to the three other buildings occupied by the Kelley company. The destroyed building was a two-story wooden structure, some 200 feet long and 40 feet wide. Continued on Page 3, Column 1.

DORCHESTER GIRL IS DYING OF POISON

Miss May Hayman, prominent in Dorchester social circles, was today reported to be dying in City Hospital of bichloride of mercury poisoning. The girl's father, Harry Hayman of Draper street, Dorchester, at his daughter's bedside declared that he had taken the poison accidentally. He refused to give any details, declaring that he may have a good deal to say later on. His wife was shocked in mystery, but it was learned that Miss Hayman was taken to the hospital Wednesday, having taken the poison at their home. As far as could be learned no report was made to the police, or at least they gave out nothing on the case. Miss Hayman, who is 32 and an attractive blonde, is well known in Dorchester but in Cambridge, where she attended Miss Leslie's private school. There she distinguished herself in athletics and was also an enthusiastic equestrian. Finding a home in August of 1922, the girl was severely injured when she collided with an automobile. READVILLE TRACK IS SOLD TO NEW HAVEN

The famous old Readville race track, for decades the shrine of lovers of harness racing and the scene of many historic struggles for supremacy between the speediest drivers and pacers in this country, will soon be acquired by the New Haven Railroad, the Boston Evening American learned today. Title to the extensive property which adjoins the great freight transfer yards of the railroad has not formally passed, but all but a few acres of the track have been sold. Beer-Wine Wave Grows in Volume Over Whole U. S.

Interest in the national poll on the prohibition question, which the Hearst newspapers, from Atlantic to Pacific, are taking, assisted by other papers throughout the country continues to increase daily. It is doubtful if any straw vote ever taken by a chain of newspapers in the United States ever met such a tremendous and spontaneous response as the present one.

Marked ballots are reaching the Boston Evening American office hourly from all parts of New England. "Wets" and "drys" alike are vitally interested in the poll judging from the replies that accompany some of the ballots from both villages and cities. The interest is widespread. Many women have taken advantage of the opportunity to vote. The results of the Boston Evening American poll to date are:

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO BUDGET EDITOR

By KATHERINE BROOKS.
"Where has the money gone?" Do you ever ask yourself that question? At the end of a week, or at the end of a month, do you ever look about your home and see shabby things that you meant to replace with new, or broken things that you meant to have mended, or empty closets where you meant to hang a new dress or a new coat, and say to yourself with a sigh: "I've spent it all somehow, and yet there's nothing to show for it." Just like the pretty little girl at boarding school, when her money was sent her plenty of spending money, but always had to write another check when there was anything she wanted. "Yes, yes, Dad," she would say, "but you never seem to know where it goes. Just write down what you spend, for I want you to learn how to manage money." With the letter she enclosed a check for $10 and a neat little account book. When daughter came home for vacation he said to her, "What are you keeping your account for?" "Oh, yes, Dad," she would say, "I've kept it." And this was the entry he found at the beginning of every month: "Received, $10—Spent, $10." Most of us, unfortunately, don't. 'COREY MURDERED WOMAN,' DECLARES JUDGE TO LAWYER

William R. Scharton, counsel for Frank Corey, convicted of robbing Mrs. Mae Price, wardrobe mistress of "The Brown Derby," publicly apologized today in Superior Court for a speech he made in open court condemning the jury's verdict of guilty.

The apology was demanded by Judge Lourie, before whom the case was tried, but Scharton, in his apology, declared he was not making it because of any fear, but because he had thought the matter over and felt an apology should be forthcoming. In commenting on the unusual incident following the returning of the verdict, Judge Lourie declared flatly today that Corey was guilty of murdering Mrs. Price in the Hotel Hollis, and probably would have been convicted at his murder trial had all the evidence at the robbery trial been presented at the first trial.

When Judge Lourie's session was opened today Scharton was in court, a fight in court, I had just come and the judge went directly to the point. He said to the defense counsel: "I DIDN'T MEAN IT."

"One sometimes utters feelings that people do not understand, not standing any fault to the jurors. Perhaps the words used were regretful. "When I used the words, 'I've to regret,' I did not mean them as a personal utterance to the jurymen. To say so to the jury was uncalled for."

"I realize this twelve man who deliberates on a case must arrive at a conscientious decision. My utterances were not intended to be personal. They were not intended as an insinuation, threat or reprisal. I Continued on Page 2, Column 1.

Hudson Falls, N. Y., March 14 (N.Y.S.)—At gunpoint five youthful thugs today forced the cashier and teller of the Hudson Falls National Bank into the vault and escaped with $12,000 in currency. The robbery was one of the most daring in the history of northern New York. A few minutes later Miss Alberta Keyworth, an employee of the bank, appeared and found her fellow workers imprisoned in the vault. She quickly released them and notified the police.

ULTIMATUM TO CHINA; U. S. SHIPS ON WAY

Manila, P. I., March 14 (N.Y.S.)—Six United States destroyers are now en route to China, according to an announcement made at the navy base here. They are the McCook, Bulmer, Simpson, Kessell, Farwell and Macleish. The ultimatum, signed by the United States and other powers to force the protocol of 1911, was handed to the commanders of the fleet at Taku and Chinese vessels outside of Tientsin. The United States, Great Britain, Japan and Italy have a dozen or more naval craft in these waters. The action of the Powers was announced to the Chinese Foreign Office in a memorandum forwarded by the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps in Peking. AL PROOF NOT GIVEN TO JURY

MEANT that the jury might have been prejudiced, unconsciously. "I want to apologize to the jury for my remarks and ask the jurors to receive the apology in the same manner in which I offer it."

Then Scharton said sharply and Judge Lourie again spoke, saying that:

"I want to distinctly understand that I shall not permit anyone to browbeat or coerce jurors into bringing in verdicts satisfactory to any particular person or clique."

WILL PROTECT JURORS.

Decided in criminal cases must be decided and based on the law and the evidence presented in court. No conduct will be permitted by me which will tend in any way, manner or form, to interfere with or obstruct the proper administration of justice.

"If I find anyone guilty of such conduct, he will be dealt with by me in a summary and decisive manner. Every juror who conscientiously and honestly performs the duties of his office is entitled to the respect and commendation of the court and the public."

"I will take this occasion to emphasize what I said to the jury that decided the Corey case. It was a fair and just verdict on the evidence presented by the government."

"The defendant had a fair and impartial trial. From the evidence I was convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the defendant of the crime charged."

"Corey robbed Max Price and brutally strangled her. I am inclined to believe that if the former jury that acquitted him of murder had heard all the evidence which the government introduced in the robbery case, Corey would have been found guilty of murder."

"After the first trial the government discovered a very important link in the chain of evidence which incriminated the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt."

"Of course the government could not try him again on the charge of murder, as he had been once in jeopardy and could plead, in law, the former acquittal."

"I took all the circumstances into consideration in imposing the maximum penalty of life imprisonment. Corey is a very fortunate man in escaping execution, which was his just penalty under the laws of the Commonwealth for the real crime which he committed."

"I want to take this opportunity to commend publicly the jury which found Corey guilty. The men on that jury have my respect, esteem and confidence in their integrity, courage, sound discretion and judgment."

Following Judge Lourie's address the jurors went to the bench and thanked him.

HE WINS DEATH RACE, TO DIE AT GOAL

A changing ambulance whirled through the portals of the City Hospital today, ending a vain relay race against death that began on the rolling sea 55 miles east of Chatham.

Inside the ambulance, Charles Goodwin, 41, of No. 159 Shawmut avenue, South End, fisherman, died as the vehicle rolled through the hospital gateway.

Goodwin, of the crew of the fishing schooner Etta M. Burns, was stricken ill when the craft was 55 miles off Chatham bound for the Georges Banks.

A snow-fume was rising, the sea was breaking high and it was stormy hours back to the ship, but the schooner put about and fought her way on the return trip with the sick man.

Today the schooner nosed up to the fish pier at South Boston and Goodwin was placed in a City Hospital ambulance for the second part of the race against death.

Too much time had elapsed, however, and when he arrived at the City Hospital Dr. Robert Coleman pronounced him dead.

Goodwin was stricken, apparently with heart trouble, at seven o'clock last night, after the day's fishing.

Captain Clifford Goodwin, who despite his similar name is no relation of the fisherman, ordered all hands on deck and drove the schooner forward at full speed.

Throughout the night Captain Goodwin with Daniel Chabouss and Max Nickerson of the crew, worked on the stricken man, massaging him over the heart, and attempting to keep him alive.

Shortly after the start Goodwin lapsed into unconsciousness, but the three men kept up their efforts, which did not cease until the victim was placed in the ambulance.

CLOUDY SKIES FOR SOUTH BOSTON'S CELEBRATION
The best the local weather man can offer for South Boston's gala celebration tomorrow is an overcast sky, occasional flurries of snow or showers of rain, accompanied by fresh west to southwest winds. The prevailing moderate temperature will continue for 36 hours longer, its further stay being dependent on whether a cold wave now causing killing frosts in the Gulf States advances northward to New England.

The first report made to Boston by a new weather station at Dorset, Quebec, came in today and established itself firmly in the cold weather column by recording its initial entry with a temperature of 35 below.

arrangements have been completed. The terms between the parties to the sale are stated as confidential.

The New Haven purchases the race track property because it will be a portion of it some time in the future for expansion of its yard facilities. That portion not required for such development will be sold for residential and industrial expansion.

The present freight transfer yards of the New Haven road at Readville comprises an important link in the road's freight handling problem.

Virtually every train of freight from the Harlem river yards in New York and from Maybrook, comprising the bulk of shipments from New York and the West, is shunted from the New Haven main line to the Readville division at Canton Meadows, thence to the Readville transfer where the long trains are broken up for delivery to Greater Boston points.

For some in freight haulage requires the road to acquire the race track for expansion of this transfer. The old Readville race track's history is romantic in itself.

For many years it was the scene of week-end Grand Circuit meetings. In the fall of the year, 1920, the famous mile track was built in the cream of the horse-racing country, owners and drivers of the country.

SPAIN AND ITALY BACK BRAZIL

Geneva, March 15 (U.N.S.)—Spain joined Brazil today in the League of Nations dispute.

Spain announced that she would not vote against the admission of Germany to the League of Nations, but that if Brazil is not granted a permanent seat in the Council she must carry out her intention of resigning from the League.

Geneva, March 15 (A.P.)—Disquieting rumors spread through the League of Nations palace today that Italy was prompting Brazil's insistence upon receiving a permanent seat in the League Council at the same time as Germany.

It was reported that either Premier Mussolini would make a statement in Rome demanding Germany cease attempting to thwart another power's obtaining a permanent seat at the same time she was accredited, or that one of the Italian representatives here might read a statement inspired by Mussolini from the floor of the Assembly tomorrow morning.

Italy's interests were deemed as demanding the continued aid of Brazil, to which country a sizable portion of her surplus population emigrates annually.

The Latin-American delegates met again today. Afranio Mello Franco, Brazilian representative, expounded Brazil's reasons for her attitude.

CABARET GIRL VANISHES ON WAY TO ACCUSE GANG THAT PREYS ON BROADWAY

Betty Edwards, pretty model, latest victim of Broadway thugs. She was shot and robbed of $2,000 in gems by supper crook who invaded her home. She will recover from wounds.

Louise Lawson, whose body was found tied, "spread eagle" fashion, tied by a silk cord to the bedposts, in her fashionable apartment overlooking Central Park, New York, February 5, 1932.

Mrs. Howard Johnson, former Roxbury girl, known as Edna Leader, tied to her bed with a silk cord, and robbed of $9,000. Her disappearance recalls the slaying of Louise Lawson and "Red King".

Neighbors Say Collapse Due to His Efforts to Please a Curious Public

Plymouth, Vt., March 16 (A.P.)—Col. John C. Coolidge, whose condition has shown some improvement during the past two days, but strength slightly today. This was the substance of a bulletin issued about 12:30 o'clock by his physician, Dr. Albert M. Cram of Bridge-water.

Plymouth, Vt., March 16 (A.P.)—The father of a President is ill and broken in his farmhouse here, and the life-time neighbors of Colonel John C. Coolidge have diagnosed his ailment.

The annual pride of a father whose son attained the highest position in the land brought about the colonel's breakdown, they maintain. In the general store where the neighbors gather each day to receive reports from the sick room they tell the story. Three years ago Colonel Coolidge was elected a Vice-President of the United States, was hale and hearty despite his advanced age.

SACRIFICES HIS HEALTH.
Then came the dramatic events of August, 1928, when Calvin Coolidge succeeded to the presidency and his father administered the oath of office to the President's boyhood home.

From that time began the decline in health that finally brought Colonel Coolidge to death's door.

Plymouth became the Mecca of thousands who wished to see the birthplace of a President. Colonel Coolidge, filled with pride in his son, believed it his duty to receive all who came.

Many who could not make the pilgrimage to the Little Green Mountain hamlet wrote letters, and Colonel Coolidge, no facile correspondent, answered the letters himself. A mass of quiet, halting and simple life was played suddenly into the midst of life.

Then neighbors say he paid the price with his health. Plymouth folk dislike to be called superstitious, but recall that the month of March has been a memorable one in the history of the Coolidge family.

It is recalled that the Colonel's first wife, mother of President Coolidge, died forty-one years ago March 11. Another sorrow marked the month when Abbie, the Colonel's daughter and the President's sister, died thirty-eight years ago yesterday. On March 31 last year, his eighteenth birthday, Colonel Coolidge lost friends that his health was failing.

FEAR HUB GIRL FOUL PLAY VICTIM

Mystery in the disappearance of Mrs. Howard Johnson, also known as Edna Leader, who vanished from her New York hotel last February, and who, it is feared, may be the victim of foul play, deepened today as an industrious and widespread hunt failed to reveal a single clue as to her whereabouts.

She was last seen on her way to court to testify against Harry Behan, charged with being one of the men who robbed her of $5,000 in jewels at the Hotel Algonquin two years ago. Her disappearance was linked by authorities to an alleged threat of one of the robbers.

Harry Behan, now serving twenty years for his part in the robbery, is said to have remarked that some of his friends would "get" Mrs. Johnson.

The sensational Algonquin robbery followed closely the murders of Dr. King and Louise Lawson, Broadway favorites, and the daring methods employed were similar in many respects. All three of the victims were trusted up and pilloved were used in each case to defend the sound of their cries.

Silence was released in $15,000 bail last Friday but re-arrested on a charge of defrauding a jewelry company. District Attorney Stanton, of New York, anxious to question Mrs. Johnson, is conducting a thorough search. He believes that she may have gone to Florida in accordance with a plan arranged before Stanton's trial was over.

U. S. TO QUASH INDICTMENTS OF MORSE

New York, March 16 (A.P.)—The New York World today says the government has decided to quash the last of the indictments against Charles W. Morse, his three sons and 18 others, on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Attorneys for Morse, the World says, have been informed the government does not regard the evidence as sufficient to justify trial, and that the indictments, brought in 1927 in connection with the sale of stock in the United States Steamship Company will be quashed within 10 days.

Mrs. Morse, veteran of two previous trials one of which sent him to Atlanta Penitentiary, from which he was pardoned by President Taft in 1912, when he was reported dying, is ill at his home here.

He was acquitted in August, 1922, after a 15-week trial in Washington on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government on war ship-building contracts.

Trial of the 11-year-old financier on the indictment growing out of the United States Steamship Company promotion has been postponed several times, due chiefly to his illness.

SILVER AND PLATINUM STRIKES IN ALBERTA
Edmonton, Alta., March 16 (A.P.)—Reports of a promising silver strike near Fort McMurray and of platinum in the vicinity of Fort Smith, are causing many old-time trappers, scattered throughout the Northwest territory, to abandon their trap lines and make their way to the scenes of the supposed hidden wealth.

The trek to both the centres has been more in the form of a steady movement than a rush, but with the breakup of winter, a great increase in the number of prospectors is expected. Fort McMurray and Fort Smith are approximately 350 miles northwest of here.

He's 3 Feet Tall, but Champion Runaway

With a firm purpose of reform, ten-year-old Ernest C. Card, boxer, today was given his 25th day away from the family ties.

The boy's father, William C. Card, promises to have him in Roxbury Juvenile Court Thursday—unless he wanders for the 25th time meanwhile—as a stubborn child.

"Another cop, I suppose," said today when a representative of the Boston Evening American called, "I won't go again; my father was too mad this time."

His trips have been varied and often, according to the boy's father, "he usually leaves and wanders around until he finds a kindly person who takes him in, or a relative. One of his trips, last summer, ended in the home of a relative in St. Johnsbury, Vt. This time we found him in the home of a boy whom whose parents thought he was waiting with my permission, while he was searched, and radio station broadcast his description."

The boy is only three feet in height and weighs 35 pounds but finds his way about like a veteran traveler—except that the ordinary traveler needs money—and he apparently does not, leaving on each trip penniless.

COOLIDGE HOLDS UP PLANS FOR SUMMER

LADY ASTOR IS HOST TO U. S. STUDENTS

London, March 16 (A.P.)—The Prince of Wales until an early hour today tripped the "right hand" as a ball given by Lady Astor in her town house in St. James' square.

It was the most outstanding event thus far of the new London season. Ordinarily the ball was given in honor of one hundred American Rhodes scholars and two-score American girls who are attending Oxford.

In addition to Wales there were present dukes, duchesses, marquis, marchionesses, earls, countesses, viscounts and viscountesses and persons notable in the political, diplomatic, literary and social life of London.

As the guests were most numerous to dine in one house, several friends of Lord and Lady Astor gave dinner parties for those who had been invited to St. James' square and afterwards accompanied them to the Astor home.

Wales arrived after dinner and joined the guests immediately. Apparently he had a good time.

STUDENTS FEAR TO GO OUT AT NIGHT ALONE

"Jack the Hugger and Kisser" continue to my unwelcome court to pretty Sargent and Radcliffe College girls, despite the arrest of four of police to frustrate the cunning chap in his emotional ravings at Cambridge. Frightened girls refuse to go out alone after dark.

Sargent girls admit that strange men jumped out of "no where" at night with menacing intent, followed by hugs and kisses, but no one could point out definitely the who or the why of the terrifying condition.

They told of two boys apprehended on an Everett street dormitory room, but what punishment was awarded to them, if any, the girls were unable to disclose.

Radcliffe dormitory girls said they were annoyed at the beginning of the school year, then the unwelcome attentions were stopped, and that now they have begun again.

All the girls are on the watch for the "hugger terror," and when they find him—well, there's no telling how these college girls will reverse themselves for his innocent situation of their feelings.

BUILDING PERMITS IN STATE SHOW DECREASE
Building permits in the thirty-nine cities of the State during January totaled $7,524,456, a drop of 9 per cent, compared with the aggregate reported for December, and a decrease of 10 per cent over the January aggregate a year ago. In making the figures public today, the State department of labor and industries said the low total of January, 1932, does not necessarily indicate a less active building program for the rest of the year.

The January 1928 total consisted of $4,621,349 for new residential buildings, $1,675,235, for new non-residential buildings—and $1,227,871 for additions and repairs.

11-INCH LIMIT PLACED ON TEACHERS' SKIRTS

Newport, R.I., March 16.—School teachers of this city, while on duty, were ordered by the board of education to wear their dresses "with the lower edge not more than 11 inches from the ground," after a mother club had protested that short skirts distracted the students from their studies, where also must be hidden the order says.

SARGENT AND RADCLIFFE GIRLS WANT "JACK THE HUGGER AND KISSER" CAPTURED

These Harvard students smile, but the "hugger terror" has caused them to worry just the same.

Everett street dormitory houses first were in face of "hugger terror" and now it's "Jack the Hugger and Kisser."

This view of a Radcliffe dormitory shows bushes where the "hugger" hides, awaiting his victim.

"Turkey" Sanders and Zella Solberich, Sargent students, hold no fears for "Jack the Hugger and Kisser."

have generous Dada to make good our shortage. We find our money more like to show for it, and then perhaps we glance across the street at our neighbor's household. Think. "The Smiths have a new radio and they gave two parties, and Mrs. Smith has ordered a fur-trimmed coat, and yet her husband earns no more than mine."

If this happens, dear reader, there's a reason; and the reason is just a few words—Budget!

Your neighbor, with an income no greater than yours, planned her buying, whereas you, probably, bought haphazard.

That is, you purchased what seemed absolutely necessary, and the bills as they came in, surprised a little on food to buy, and without a new hat or a needed dress because there was a doctor's bill and thought.

"I'll get the bills paid and buy the dresses with what's left."

And then—there wasn't any left!

That's what? You know how much money was coming in, and you knew it would take practically all to house, food and clothes the family; and perhaps you thought, as you saw your neighbor's wife settling down her expenses from day to day.

"What good does that do? The money's gone, and there's the end of it."

But there isn't the end of it if she has more to show her what she spent than you have. And there isn't the end of it, if you can have as much for the same income as she.

And you can! Let's try it and see.

Running the home on a budget is the very latest thing in household finance. More and more women are adopting this system, with the result that more and more families are having better homes and a greater degree of comfort and security.

BUDGET PRINCIPLE.

Large incomes and small incomes—the principle is the same. However much or little money you have to spend, you can buy more with it if you PLAN your spending. That is what budgeting means.

In the belief that every home should be run on a budget, and that a greater degree of happiness and property may be enjoyed through wise management, the Boston Evening American today begins a series of articles on "planned spending."

A group of prominent women has endorsed the plan, and has been formed into a standing committee to back the American in its campaign for "a budget in every home."

This committee consists of the following members:

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts.
Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, Dean Emerita of Simmons College.
Mrs. Jennie Lottman Barron of the Boston School Committee.
Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, president of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts.
Mrs. Arthur B. Hilly, vice-chairman, Department of the American Home, State Federation of Women's Clubs.
Mrs. Harry A. Burnham, chairman, Department of the American Home, State Federation of Women's Clubs.
Mrs. Martin T. Joyce, wife of the secretary of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor.

get of a friend, you find that it all begins some time ago.

If you want to "get into the game," the sooner the better. Perhaps you do not want a new radio. YOUR problem may be: "Can I afford a new light fixture, a new china cabinet?" or "Can we manage to keep the fire over and over?" There is only one way to find out—Budget!

As a first step, send for the Boston American Home Budget sheet. This will be sent free to anyone who applies. It is for a record by which you will plan and write down your spending. On the back is a full explanation of its use, which will also be explained later in this column.

If you have problems write them to the Home Budget Editor, and your questions will be answered. No name and address will be published without permission. Address all letters to Miss Katherine Brooks, Home Budget Editor, Boston American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Tomorrow the square will give directions, "How to Build a Budget."

MAN FROM U. S. ADMITS DEATH OF MATTEOTTI

Chapel, Mass., March 16 (U.S.N.S.)—Amerigo Dumini, former Fascist leader, today acknowledged alone the responsibility for the death of Deputy Matteotti, for whose murder he is on trial with four others.

Dumini, who claims he was born in St. Louis, took the witness stand and immediately absolved the others from blame.

"I wish to state definitely that none of my present companions on trial were with me when Matteotti died," said Dumini, dramatically.

"The kidnapping was completely on my initiative."

This frank statement came as a surprise. Inference drawn by many in court led to conjecture whether Dumini might place a further charge on the others arrested and released were present when Matteotti died.

In 1925 Dumini said, he went to Paris to investigate alleged anti-Fascist and Socialist plots against the Fascist government of Italy. These investigations, he said, led him to the conclusion that Matteotti had inspired the murder of the Fascist secretary Donservati in Paris in 1924.

"That is why I decided to kidnap Matteotti," said Dumini.

Prior to Dumini going on the stand the judge had announced that those on trial were charged with "murder under aggravating circumstances," indicating that the court will consider the political aggravations which may have contributed to the murder.

Dumini told the court that he did not know how Matteotti died.

"It was all over in a few minutes," said Dumini, after telling of kidnapping Matteotti and forcing him into an automobile.

"How did Matteotti die, if death was not intended?" inquired the judge.

"I don't know how he died," replied Dumini. "He died while I was at the wheel of the automobile."

'YANK' GETS IN ITALY PRAISE W. R. HEARST

Rome, March 15 (Universal).—The executive committee from the department of Italy of the American Legion at a joint meeting with the Rome Post, unanimously passed a resolution thanking William Hearst for his support, through his newspapers, of the bill to repatriate the American veterans who are called in Italy, through the working of the quota clause in the immigration law.

WOOL STRIKERS IN PLEA TO CAPITOL AS 2 FACE JAIL

Phonetic, N. Y., March 15 (A.P.).—Albert Weisbord, organizer of the textile strike, was in Washington today seeking Federal intervention, and Jack Rubenstein, his pocket, and two of his lieutenants faced jail sentences for disorderly conduct. The arrest and conviction of Rubenstein and his two aides, regarded as a blow to the union front committee, followed Sheriff George P. Nimmo's declaration that he was ready to act in the event of demonstrations. Rubenstein got ninety days and Thomas Regan and Frank Barlow, his aides, thirty days each.

BETTY'S ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Palm Beach Entertaining, At Its Height Now, Is of Scintillating Brilliance

TRULY THIS SEASON AT the American, "Riviera," fairly scintillates with pomp and brilliance. Quite the most gorgeous entertainments in the sumptuous and carefree Palm Beach category were the "Bright Shovel Ball" and the "Palm Beach Nights."

BOTH WERE LAVISHLY spectacular in semi-tropical settings, and both carry the hallmark of distinguished sponsorship. For the "Bright Shovel Ball," given at the Alcazar, by the Society of Arts in honor of the Good Samaritan Hospital, Mrs. Charles F. Choate and Mrs. Charles L. Harding were patronesses.

ALSO MRS. REGINALD BOARDMAN, Mrs. Gurnee Munn and Mrs. John Moore, the last mentioned matron being hostess for Mrs. John B. Lawrence during her Palm Beach visit. The event carried the vivid Spanish fiesta flavor, with feminine guests arrayed in priceless befringed gowns gracefully draped.

THERE WERE tango dances and strolling singers; a marvelous tropical background of gleaming water, tinkling fountains and mingled flower scents. Supper was served on the terrace and everyone voted it a Palm Beach event par excellence.

PALM BEACH society as actors in the benefit performance of "Palm Beach Nights" stepped to the echo by Society leaders who formed the large and distinguished audience. Harold S. Vanderbilt, now in the South for a month, had a group of guests.

MISS ANITA POTTS and Miss Nancy Hale, two of the younger smart set interested in furthering the interests of that worthy organization, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Mrs. CHARLES A. MUNN now en route to Paris made a last gold slippers fastened with large de Montaigne in a straight and coin buttons.

"A MADO" on North Ocean Boulevard is the Munn establishment at Palm Beach where the charming chateau dispenses a lavish hospitality during the season. She considers Paris, however, her permanent home, having a handsome place there in the Rue de Thury.

THERE IS ALSO a summer villa at Cap Ferrat, France, and there the family will migrate in the late Spring after Mr. Munn and the children have joined Mrs. Munn at their Paris residence.

ARTISTICALLY, Palm Beach's social set is setting a high pace. And for concerts and such, well-known matrons stand sponsor. Mesdames Hobart Endicott Warren, George A. Dwyer and Robert A. Jordan featured in that regard for the Boston Othman's concert at the Hotel Alcazar.

Mrs. JOHN MAJOR was a patroness when Rafaela Tancun, tenor of the Metropolitan, staged his recital in Mrs. Edward Hutton's garden and one was served in the patio. Mrs. Hobart E. Warren, of the Palm Beach residential set, also sponsored.

HOUSEBOATING in Southern waters is the favorite pastime holding many prominent Bostonians in thrall. The R. H. Brewster Draper, of Commonwealth avenue, and a number of cruising about the keys aboard a luxurious craft, and include Cuba in their itinerary.

THE DRAPERS, by the way, will make a late season town stay before going out to "The Crossways" in Hopedale. The names "Hopedale" and "Draper" are, as every one knows, synonymous for the Draper clan for which R. H. Brewster Draper is the head. He has long association with the pretty little village.

MEMBERS OF THE Draper family and the housewife live a glorified existence somewhat after the old aristocratic manner with feminine Drapers playing the "Lady Hunter" role, particularly Mrs. Brewster Draper in this regard.

THEIR PLACE is a particularly country home, with beautifully arranged gardens about a white rambling structure which flaunts a banner of a flash of bright orange in awnings and lawn umbrellas.

COLONEL EBERT DRAPER's place in Hopedale is called "The Lodge" and Wildlife Draper and Mrs. Nathaniel Farrell Ayer (Eileen Draper) also have homesteads in the charming place and spend a portion of each season there.

CONTRARY TO their usual custom, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Brown of Commonwealth avenue did not go South this Winter for a month of informal household life aboard their well known craft, the "Mystic." The boat was not put into commission, and the Browns have spent most of the Winter in town.

THERE IS A SECOND "Mystic" flying the Brown colors, the handsome schooner yacht enrolled under the Eastern Yacht Club colors, and a familiar sight in Massachusetts Bay waters during the Summer. Mr. Brown is an ardent yachtsman, with a distinct liking for blue water sailing.

BOSTON'S NOTED sculptress, Anna Coleman Ladd (Mrs. Maynard Ladd of Clarendon street and Beverly Farms), spoke recently to the Coral Gables Garden Club in Mrs. George B. Merrick's lovely garden.

HER THEME was Art in the relation to everyday life and the necessity of art as exemplified in gardens. Her own barn studio and statutory art gardens at Beverly Farms served as examples to illustrate her talk.

Mrs. LADD welcomed her friends every week-end at "Alden," as the North Shore place, situated in the dense woods, is named. Here is a delightful garden scene of knolls and dells left in their natural beauty and set with models Mrs. Ladd's many and famous works.

THE NAME of Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte is frequently mentioned when swarthy colors are the subject of comment. Her over white crepe with graceful gray skirt, wide gray velvet hat and set with models Mrs. Ladd's many and famous works.

LIKEWISE, Mrs. Charles Christie whose flair is for distinctive simplicity in adornment. Her frocks and chapeaux of soft rose, even at the Everglades, was much admired. Also her white fur-trimmed coat and small French felt of white.

'POP,' 81, SAYS HE, NOT HUB MAN, IS OLDEST SOLDIER

San Francisco, March 15 (A.P.)—The recent claim of Pat Poyntz, 80-year-old Boston soldier, that he is the oldest active soldier in the army, is outdone by James H. "Pop" Johnson, 81, who says he's hale and hearty because he smokes 12 cigars a day. "Pop" depicts his years, actively does the work of field clerk in the quartermaster's store at Fort Bliss.

Johnson admitted Poyntz seemed "hard up," but summed up his opinion with: "What the heck does he want to retire for?" "Fire in the army for good and he's not retired," said Johnson, who has spent 67 years of his life in the service.

did so much for both today. Governor Fuller ordered the State House flag at half-mast, as did Mayor Nichols that at City Hall.

BOYS MOURN BENEFACTOR. The school committee of Boston had an expression of its grief expressed on the committee's records. Mr. Storrow having been a member of the committee for six years. The City Council and Mayor Nichols joined in a like expression of regret for the passing of Mr. Storrow.

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard headed a delegation from the institution from which Mr. Storrow was graduated with honors.

ATTENDANCE A GREAT AID TO ROMANCE

Beatrice Fairfax Gives Helpful Advice

By Beatrice Fairfax
Who teaches a course, pointing in the Writing World as an Author-By on Problems of Love.

WHEN you were very young, did you ever find flower buds, then in a day or two did them up to see whether they were sweet? I once did and wondered why my flower garden was a failure.

In later years we often see our friends' hopes of romance because we can't wait long for matrimony, slowly flower in our hearts.

Many girls wonder the first man who offers, even though he comes nothing for him in her own mind. I have seen many girls who are old maid. I am when I am to see him as if he were to come to me.

Married couples try to divorce courts at the first moment. They do not know the difference between the first man who offers, even though he comes nothing for him in her own mind. I have seen many girls who are old maid. I am when I am to see him as if he were to come to me.

The Making of a Husband, Interesting Serial on Problems of Married Life, By Ann Lisle

By Ann Lisle
"I've never had a husband," said Jim. "The more I think about it, the more I want to get married."

"I've never had a husband," said Jim. "The more I think about it, the more I want to get married."

Jim's casual tone hurt her. And his cold face began to smart and ache. Little streams of moisture were coming down inside her coat collar. "I don't like your looking at me like that," she said. "I don't like your looking at me like that."

to the ground and jumped back. The creek which went out like a cannon was still echoing in her ears. But now the road leading from the Pines to Nicholas Perry's house, the Hefewoods, was still again. "I don't like your looking at me like that," she said. "I don't like your looking at me like that."

So I arose and walked around the impending tree and up the bank as if I had been accustomed to more shoes. But when I got around the tree I found Jim sitting up, his head and shoulders out almost laughing.

"You're not hurt, are you?" "My feet are sore," said Jim. "I wanted to get like a bear, but now my feet are sore. I don't know how I can't sleep off a darn thing."

"I don't know how I can't sleep off a darn thing," said Jim. "I don't know how I can't sleep off a darn thing."

Serviss Writes on What First Started the Earth to Whirling

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"A friend and I discussed for three hours the question, why the planets turn round the sun, and why the sun revolves around the common center. He claimed it was the first start of the world, but that was not the law of gravitation. After three hours I told him that the sun was to write to you."

Pushed after being judged by Madame Judy. The most convincing feature of the Laplace theory, as usually presented, was that it gave a satisfactory explanation of the origin of the solar system.

But the exceptions are peculiar in that they seem to depend upon distance from the sun. Out as far as Saturn no planet fails to follow the common direction of axial rotation.

Two cases because what we really observe is the direction of revolution of the satellites, the surfaces of these planets being in a very crude way to parallel their rotation.

Meditations of a Wife

By Helen Rowland
HUSBANDS are "little men" who are "big" in the eyes of their wives. They are "big" in the eyes of their wives.

You can always tell, by the slowness or reluctance with which a man hangs up the telephone receiver, whether he has been talking to his wife or to "another little woman of his acquaintance."

Sometimes a man's love-making, like a fancy valentine, is so elaborate and full of frills that the recipient is entirely lost.

Distance from Sun. Also all of the planets, except the sun, rotate on their axis in the same direction in which they revolve around the sun.

COOK-COOKS

SOCIETY item says that Mr. and Mrs. Howard Berbeck, local society leaders, introduced a new fashion last night when guests at a supper party found the place cards nailed to the table.

Not a bad idea, but wouldn't it be more to the point to chain down the silverware?

It is also suggested that place bottoms be given a coat of glue to keep them from chidding.

And, of course, something should be done to keep guests from using the great towels.

Some day the perfect host is going to introduce paper mache squabs.

It will be a diversion from the current practice of serving rubber squabs.

Storeroom, the office floor, attended a supper party the other night where they had silverware with filberts. But she daintily placed them all on the edge of her better place.

FOXY GRANDPA BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"HERE M is," cried Bobby, as he ran ahead of him in the zoo. Here's the other's cage! Bobby was very anxious to see the animals, because his little friend, Elizabeth, had just told him that she had a new coat and that it was trimmed with otter, so he couldn't rest until he saw from what kind of an animal the trimming on Elizabeth's coat had come from.

"There's the pool for them," I said. "You know otters live in the water a great part of the time, and when they are kept in captivity if they haven't a pool to swim around in they are not happy."

"These otters ought to be very happy," said Bobby, measuring the length of the pool with his eyes. "I could almost go swimming in that pool myself."

"But where are the others?" I asked, for nothing was in sight.

"They're coming out," whispered Bobby.

And sure enough in another moment out came an animal and behind her three babies.

"It looks like a cat," said Bobby. "Exactly like a cat."

"It is a cat," said Bobby. "It's a cat and her three kittens." Just then the guard came along and when he saw our surprise, he laughed and told me that the white cat and her kittens had only been put temporarily in that cage until their own was ready, and he said that they were now available at the zoo. "They're just to be had," he said as he left us. "There's more pure goodness to the pound in one of those animals than there is in most any other creature living."

The mother without must have heard him, for she started an awful snarl. It even made Bobby jump. We sat there for a little while

A Boston Volunteer

Today's Tribute to James Jackson Storrow

Americans from far and near join the people of Boston and the citizens of Massachusetts in grateful tribute today to the life and the work of James Jackson Storrow.

As the senior member of the justly famous banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, his honorable and manifold success in the world of business and finance won him high and lasting place in the annals of his day and generation.

With him, however, opportunity and obligation went hand in hand. Banking was his vocation, good causes his avocation. The opportunities of the one were equalled, in his philosophy of life, by what he believed to be the obligations of the other.

Conscientious as he was in discharging the duties of his chosen calling, he was no less conscientious in volunteering to take upon his broad shoulders those tasks for others that became the enthusiasm of his life.

His talent for leadership, his patience as an organizer, and the wide range of his sympathies, made him most effective alike in the great enterprises that prospered under his skillful guidance and in the many good causes that triumphed by reason of his indispensable assistance.

The lesson of a life so pre-eminently useful in many fields of endeavor can best be read in the beneficent legacy of the example of a man of large affairs who never spared himself in the service of the causes that marked the milestones of his earthly pilgrimage.

The City of Boston, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the New England neighborhood of States, share with the Nation the loss of a Boston volunteer in the unending service of good causes.

Harvard University bestowed upon Mr. Storrow last year her highest honorary degree. The appropriateness of these words then addressed to him will be impressed upon all those who pay tribute to the memory of James Jackson Storrow.

"Rise of high family traditions, who, in peace and war, has been called in time of need into the breach for public service."

Woman Who Runs House

How She Can Avoid Worry and Disappointment

Does the money go out from your house faster than it comes in? Is there little or nothing left in the pay-envelope, for emergencies? Does debt hang over the family, like a pall?

If your answer is "Yes" to any or all of these questions, your attention is earnestly directed to the first of a series of important articles, printed on another page of the Boston Evening American, on the subject of the budget in the home.

The job of every woman who runs a house is that of Manager of the Home Concern. SHE does the buying. If her husband is a wise man, she handles the family money. Women spend nine-tenths, men only one-tenth, of all the vast sum required annually to feed, clothe and shelter the American people. The world's biggest business is this business of home-making.

In the AVERAGE family, it is absolutely necessary for the manager to give serious thought to the proper division of the monthly income.

The budget system will help her because the budget system means PLANNED spending.

What IS a budget?

The dictionary tells us it is a "statement of probable revenue and expenditure," for the coming month, quarter, or year. Its central idea is to provide a system for such an ORDERLY expenditure of funds, within the period covered, that at its close there will be a balance on the RIGHT side of the ledger.

The budget sheet will be set down the basic items of Food, Shelter and Clothing, the incidental expenses connected with these three, Education, Recreation and other items of personal expenditure, and then the items of Savings and Investment.

Instead of haphazard, hit or miss expenditures of the monthly income, resulting may be in incidental or accidental savings, the budget plan compels the family, before ANY of its money is spent, to face this question of saving.

PLANNED spending, since one's needs are known long in advance, means (1) economy and wisdom in buying, (2) the prevention of small leaks, (3) regular and INCREASED savings, (4) a better rounded life.

Making a budget will force you to face clearly the limits of your family income and decide definitely what things are necessary and what can be done without.

WHEREVER the budget has been put into effect it has prevented extravagance and increased savings.

And bear this in mind, too, ladies, people who keep house on a BUDGET system actually are able to have more things that they want than are those who have NO plan for spending their money.

Read these helpful articles by Katherine Brooks, one of the most efficient newspaper writers in New England. Learn how to devise and how to adhere to a budget and you will find that you have placed your life—and your business of home-making—on a more serene basis.

The budget system has been set up with success in public and private institutions and with GREAT success by leading cities, many State governments and the National Government.

Give it a trial in the home. Live up to it faithfully and meet of the worry and disappointment due to "finances" will leave you at once and be gone forever.

GERMANY INVITES
ALLIES TO SIT DOWN
AT THE ROUND TABLE AND COMPROMISE—

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELsie ROBINSON

"I'll give him my heart and hand," says Anxious. "I'll endure the sight of him in his last week's whiskers and let him face the odd test of seeing me in a close pack. I'll tell him all about our family skeleton and my bridge work. I'll set his head and share his bed. I'll bear his babies and stand for his bedtime stories about having to work overtime in the office. But I'll be home when he'll combine our bank account. Why should I?"

There, in a few snappy sentences, you get one modern girl's view of matrimony. Here's the main part of her letter:

"Dear Elsie: My friend and I are about to be married. He suggests that we put our money together, in the same bankbook. I don't approve of it, but he says that's the proper thing to do. I don't know how much money he has. I have deprived myself to save the little I have. Now I can't see that it's the best thing to make it one. Tell me, what shall I do?"

"ANXIOUS"—
Yes, I know the obvious things I should tell this young person. But why burst forth into a shocked protest before we consider her side of the question.

Just One Difference

Here's a wage earner who doesn't believe in trusting all her financial security to a male. Well, there's nothing new about that. History shows that for untold thousands of years there have been wage earners upon this globe who did not believe in entrusting all their financial security to their mates. In fact, it is only within the last handful of years that matrimony has incubated the idea of community property rights.

Between those millions of other wage earners and Anxious there is one difference. They were males—she is a female.

But their attitude is identical. And the motive that gave rise to that attitude was identical. They were to love them, honor them, but they felt it both inexpedient and unnecessary to impose too great a strain upon their family treasuries.

First, because having won those possessions by the sweat of their brows and the stress of their spirits, they felt fiercely possessive about them.

Second, because they did not feel that their lady wives were wholly to be trusted. They were sure to love them, honor them, but they felt it both inexpedient and unnecessary to impose too great a strain upon their family treasuries.

For these reasons, then, in the countless ages which have passed, kept their funds on the bank books. For exactly the same reason, Anxious is now distrustful of keeping her flat on hers.

She, too, has won certain material possessions by considerable struggle and strain. And during that struggle and strain she has acquired more than dollars and cents—she has acquired a fairly comprehensive knowledge of human nature, particularly that portion of it which wears Oxford Bags. She has seen men do all the 57 varieties of Fool Stunts—and then some. She has seen them founder in enterprises and sneak out in crisis. And unless she has supreme egotism she sees no reason why they should be any more reliable in handling HER affairs than they are in handling their own, or some other woman's.

In short, Anxious has exactly the same estimate of man which he has had of her for these many moons. And who shall blame her?

More Romance?

"But Romance has come to a sorry pass when women feel this way about their future husbands' sign a million or so disillusioned males.

Well, dearie, Romance managed to struggle along for several eons with men feeling that way about their future wives, so I don't see why a slight reversal of the situation need prove fatal to the old lady.

Theoretically, of course, the union of pocketbooks creates a slight thing to talk at when they are willing to unite body and spirit. And I, for one, am quite sure that if I were willing to marry a man I'd do it with the grand gesture—and with what I call I had into the pot along with all the rest. And if I failed, I'd rather feel that I risked generously.

THE SPIRIT OF LIVE AND LET LIVE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SIR ESME HOWARD, the British Ambassador to the United States, spoke the other day to the New England Society of Brooklyn, taking as his topic the subject of international tolerance.

He said that "the necessity of a spirit of live and let live and of not attempting to force our neighbor to think just as we do" is now receiving greater recognition.

Especially, he continued, history should not be used as a method of inculcating patriotism or propaganda. As near as possible history should confine itself to a statement of fact. It may be very difficult to restrain historical writers from coloring their facts with their point of view and their inclination, and sometimes the historian in his anxiety to be liberal may lean too far backwards and be justly charged with unpatriotic statements.

But the fact remains that history and not preaching, and the historian should always keep before him the ideal of simply and justly relating the facts and not giving his views of the facts.

Too often history under the semblance of teaching patriotism is colored attractively and falsely. Children so taught by it grow up to be easy subjects for extremists.

Every man knows from his individual experience that he must often make allowances for the point of view of others who differ from himself. And the same allowance should be made among nations. All nations do not see eye to eye, and the customs and habits of thought for one nation differ from those of another.

We should endeavor to put ourselves in the other fellow's place even nationally. We should try to look at French facts as Frenchmen see them, and at German facts as Germans see them, and at English facts as Englishmen see them, and not at all those facts as an American sees them.

The wider and more hospitable our minds, the nearer we will come to basing our feelings on really scientific foundations, and the nearer we will come to being just to all men.

National vanity, egotism and chauvinism are potent causes of war and it is as necessary for one nation to think kindly of another as it is for a man to regard his fellow beings with tolerance.

HOW MUCH DOES YOUR FAMILY MISS YOU WHEN AWAY?

You have been away from home a great deal and many times you have heard certain members of your family speak regretfully of that fact.

Recently you have arranged your work so that you could be home more. Now you are surprised at the lack of enthusiasm which your statement that you will "remain at home this evening" calls forth.

Or perhaps you have lingered without saying that you were going to stay at home. To your surprise, the different members of your family one after another have gotten up and left you.

Actually you have felt like a stranger, because you had no idea that the other members of the family did anything or went anywhere in your absence.

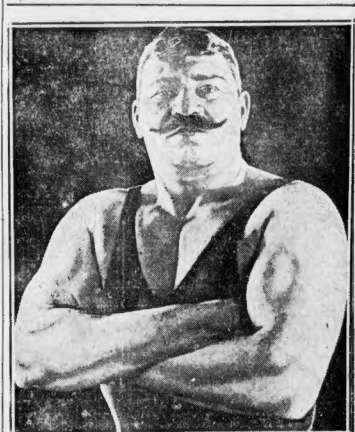

That is just the risk any man runs when he lets business absorb him. He does not know his family's likes, dislikes, friends, enemies nor where they spend their time.

And the family has grown so accustomed to shifting each for himself or herself that to have father home is almost embarrassing. They don't know what to do to entertain this rapidly seen head of the house.

Huge Muscles, Terrific Power

But It All Amounts to Nothing Now

Ivan Poddubny, Russian giant, most powerful of wrestlers. A thousand pounds of muscle is not worth a tenth of a ounce of good BRAIN.

This muscular giant sporting wren call "most powerful living wrestler, most powerful of all athletes."

His loud boast is, "Let me get hold of a man, and I will put him down or break his neck."

Even a strong, average man would risk his life in conflict with this giant, roadway's great arms wrapped around a man's waist would literally break and splinter as weakness unless the other man, like Poddubny, was fortified up and down his body the full length of his spine on both sides, with over-developed gigantic muscles protecting the bones and nerves as the fibre of a well-made tire protects the soft inner tube from the hard road.

Here you have the MAXIMUM OF BRUTE STRENGTH. We know today that a tenth of an ounce of the right kind of brain is worth more than a hundred thousand pounds of highly developed muscle.

Treat your body wisely and temperately. Let it rest after it has eaten.

Feed your mind wisely, carefully, also temperately, and let it rest while your stomach digests.

Remember in feeding the mind and in feeding the stomach that it is QUALITY that counts; also, that in eating it is SLOWNESS of eating that promotes digestion, and in reading it is careful THINKING that promotes thought.

Go to see Poddubny wrestle, if that interests you. But don't envy him. YOU NEEDN'T.
